

The model had told us that we should perform a buy operation.

The price rises instantly during the purchase, creating a positive sliding point.

Sliding points undermine the equivalence between model performance and profitability.

